from the time the need first arises. In the instance of a child needing plastic surgery the condition may be noted by the obstetrician who delivers him and then refers him directly to the Crippled Children's Division. The local Public Health Nurse talks with the family, explains the nature and location of the clinics, arranges transportation if necessary, often through the local Health Councils, and follows the family with advice and care until the child can be seen at clinic. There the condition is thoroughly examined by a group of physicians and a medical social worker. Arrangements are made for the necessary plastic surgery. The child is later taken to the hospital equipped for such service, usually here in Maine, but in special instances to Children's Hospital in Boston. The Division in dire need has flown crippled children or children in need of special treatment to Boston. About seventy clinics are held an-

GOULD CLASS OF 1928 PLANS REUNION DINNER JUNE 9

usually in Maine to deal with the problems of the crippled child, which includes a child from birth to the age of 21 or the general problem of child health. No child is ever taken away from his own family doctor. Rather these services in many instances supplement these doctors, who use the clinics for referral. In many other cases the children involved have no doctors nor funds to provide private medical care. Careful interpretation of the needs of each child is made through the medical social consultant to the family, and a study of the family's resources. Included in the Crippled Children's Services is a program for children with rheumatic fever, dental needs, congenital heart disease, impaired hearing as well as the more generally thought of crippled conditions. These conditions may arise at birth or from accident. Mrs. Rissanen made her audience keenly aware of the scope of the work, when she said that there are better than 4000 crippled children in our state. She urged the continued interest on the part of the Bethel Community Health Council in matters of interest to these children, and particularly with the provision of transportation for their necessary clinic appointments by means of which the State Dept. of Health and Welfare hopes to return these youngsters to lives of happiness and normalcy.

Conservation Farming
In Oxford County

by Douglas L. Starston
Soil Conservation Service
Chester Ferris of Canton has started work on a grading project on a piece of corn ground. Mr. Ferris has a large gully that separates an intervalle piece of ground into two units and as it is full of water for most of the year it is impossible to get through it with a tractor. We surveyed the area and established a grade line to which a bulldozer will grade in the banks of the gully. This will permit surface water to run off the field early and to make the area into one complete unit.

Arle Holman of Dixfield plans about six acres of contour strip cropping on his farm this spring. We staked out contour guide lines and Arle plans to plow parallel to these lines in strips about 10 to 150 feet wide. Arle has had experience with contour planting before and feels that it is a necessary farming practice on upland farms such as his.

Albert Soule of South Paris is doing an excellent job of thinning and pruning in young pine stands on his property on the East Oxford Road. Mr. Soule also uses the area to teach Boy Scouts the practice of woodland management and conservation.

BEAR RIVER GRANGE

Bear River Grange met at their hall Saturday night, May 6, in regular session with W. M. Paul Wright in the chair. This was to be degrees work night but as one of our candidates was entertaining the due work was postponed. We had visitors from Alder River, Round Mt., Swift River, and Rumford Granges. This was so close to "Music Week" that the Lecturer's program was based on Music. Two names were brought in by Dennis cards. It was voted to try and get the ladies' degree team of West Paris to work our degrees in two weeks. Reports of the sugar cut did not stretch our bank account enough to do any damage. Program was as follows and gave us one more point on our star: Singing by the Grange; Contest, guessing songs as played on the piano by Sister Hattie Hutchinson—three won prizes, Helen Varner, Hazel Wardwell and Gertie Bartlett; History of Music, Lecturer; A skit by Fred and Ida Wright and Helen Varner—Helen sang "Home, Sweet Home"; Remarks and stories.

Now listen — while I tell you about our "Week end Special" on May 19. We have our first three point meeting—the officers from Alder River Grange will fill the chairs. Of course "3 point meetings" call for a 6:30 feed. Visitors to bring pastry. Then the Lecturers have a "bang up" good program all outlined. There's music, fancy dances and who knows what else to help you to forget the pains and rheumatism that caper thru your bones and joints. The ladies' degree team from West Paris Grange will work the 3rd and 4th degrees on our candidates. Reports are that they are excellent, so who wants to miss them? Of course you nor nor nobody else wants to so we shall hope to see you all there even if you have to come with a cane. The ladies string will be out. Why don't some or all of you members that have been absent so long come that night? We shall be glad to see you. Eva Yates.

Grass fires have caused a lot of damage to farm property already this spring. Be careful when you light that match or throw away that cigarette.
